Soviets to halt uranium output

LONDON, April 7, (Reuter): Soviet leader Mikhail Gorba-chev said today his country will stop producing uranium used to make nuclear weapons.

He made the announcement in a speech at London's Guildhall near the end of his 40-hour visit to Britain.

"I take the opportunity to inform you of our decision, taken recently, to cease production as of this year of enriched weapongrade uranium," he said.

Gorbachev with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher sitting alongside, said this would be done by shutting down two nuclear reactors in 1989 and 1990, which will not be replaced.

"This is yet another major step towards the wrapping up of production of fissionable materials for use in nuclear weapons," he declared.

The announcement was the only major revelation in Gorbachev's 25-minute speech, in which he had been expected to explain his concept of a common European home.

But he made no reference to this topic, which has become a major theme of Soviet foreign policy over the past year.

NEW DELHI, April 7, (Reuter): Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto has curbed the role of Pakistan's military intelligence in arming and supporting Afghan and Indian rebels, an Indian minister said yesterday.

India, has complained bitterly in the past that Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI) aided ing power last December after 11

Sikh and Kashmiri militants. But deputy Home Minister Palaniappan Chidambaram told Parliament Benazir had severely curtailed its activities since takyears of military rule. "There is a whole lot of evidence that the ISI's power and sphere of action in encouraging terrorism in India and Afghanistan have been severely curtailed since democracy returned to Pakistan," Chidambaram was quoted as saying by Indian news

Chidambaram added that ISI links to Sikh militants fighting for an independent homeland in the north Indian state of Punjab and rebels wanting to join Indian-held Kashmir to Pakistan had not ceased.

"There is clear evidence that the ISI is supporting the rebel mujahedeen in Afghanistan and has links with terrorists in Punjab and the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front," he said.

COLOMBO, April 7, (AP): Tamil militants yesterday blew up a truck carrying Indian troops in northern Sri Lanka, killing at least 18 soldiers, military officials said. Six more soldiers were killed later in a gunbattle with the fleeing guerrillas, residents said.

Militants using remote con-trolled devices detonated explosives buried in the road as the truck passed over it at Mankulam village, 42 kilometers (26 miles) north of Vavuniya town, the officials said. At least five soldiers were injured, they said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Major religions oppose fertility techniques

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, April 7. (AP): Representatives of four major religions told a forum on in vitro fertilisation they opposed test tube babies when donated sperm or ovum were used, but would accept the technique under some circumstances. Addressing a forum on ethical aspects of the technique on Wednesday, a Roman Catholic delegate said the Vatican opposed in vitro fertilisation. Muslim, Buddhist and Jewish clerics said the practice could be sanctioned within defined limits.

All four religious groups, however, strongly opposed to carrying out experiments on human embryos as well as using sperm, ovum or embryos donated by third parties for implantation in infertile women.

"The mere fact that parents and doctors can play around with an embryo ... is very, very dangerous, Sheikh T. Tabari, a Muslim cleric, told doctors from 42 countries at the conference. "Why approach even the boundaries of such dangers?"

Dr Joseph Schenker, chief gynaecologist at Jerusalem's Hadassah hospital, said religious opposition to sperm donation was reflected in its ban in 20 of the 59 countries practicing in vitro fertilization.

Martin Fleischmann and Stanley Pons stunned scientists last month by saying they had achieved nuclear fusion at room temperature using ordinary laboratory equipment.

In their eight-page article for the Journal of Electroanalytical Chemistry and Interfacial Electrochemistry, they wrote: "We realise that the results reported here raise more questions than they provide answers."

The said: the most surprising feature of their experiment was that the bulk of the resultant energy was due to a hitherto unknown nuclear process or proces-

The journal released early copies of its April 10 issue with the report by Fleischmann, of Britain's Southampton Univer-sity, and Pons, head of the University of Utah's chemistry department.

They conducted their experiment using various sizes of paladium rods and plates in heavy water at 300 degrees Kelvin (27 degrees Centigrade or 81 degrees Fahrenheit).

"We urge the use of extreme caution in such experiments. A possible interpretation...is in terms of ignition," they wrote.

Their results showed that the larger the rod of palladium, the more energy was generated. The largest rod was 2.5 cm (one inch) long with a diameter of 0.4 cm (one-sixth of an inch).

hours on duty, and a day and a half to go," says Dr Elliot Goodman after leaving a casualty ward where he helped other doctors and nurses fighting to revive an elderly man with heart failure.

"I got to bed last night, but now I'm on call till Monday morning," says Goodman. "Who knows what tonight will bring?"

Controversy is raging in Britain over the hours being worked by junior doctors, with the Conservative government seeking to reform the country's National Health System and critics saying it is not being sufficiently funded. The junior doctors, mostly in their 20s, say the hours they work can be so arduous that they are putting patients at risk. Long hours are traditional for juniors but advances in medical technology have made the jobs more complex and stress-ridden.

For 24 hours over a recent weekend a Reuter reporter shadowed surgical houseman Goodman, whose pockets were bulging with medical handbooks and stethoscope, as he chased around Addenbrookes' Hospital in this university town 70 miles (110 km) north of London.

Several of Goodman's fellow doctors picketed outside hospitals to campaign for shorter hours earlier this year. They say chronic lack of sleep from an average 86-hour week increases their chances of making serious mistakes. Goodman could be bleeped at any time from eight am on Saturday until eight am on Monday.

Unshaven, wearing green surgical pyjamas which he said were the best thing if he had to jump out of bed in a hurry, he checked recent admissions and chased blood tests.

Two urgent surgical cases coincided in the afternoon. An old man was brought in vomiting blood. While Goodman helped prepare him for theatre, the heart failure case arrived, and within minutes a "crash team" (cardiac arrest team) of young doctors

Goodman, qualified for just one month, was the most junior doctor present.

Later, Goodman continued his routine ward duties. So far, he had not stopped to eat lunch, but munched crisps (potato chips) on his way round the building, despite a colleague's remark that doctors had been known to faint from hunger while on duty.

At nine pm Goodman almost fell asleep while talking to a patient's relatives. He then had to comfort a distressed 92-year-old terminal cancer.

Midnight: A family doctor called. Another patient would be here in an hour. No hopes of bed for Goodman until 2.30.

"It's a fallacy that long hours are necessary for experience," one doctor said. "The only experience you gain is how to take short cuts because you want to go to bed." 2 am: Goodman went to his room for a rest.

Bleep a new patient was due to arrive in an hour. Goodman borrowed a toaster to perk up some stale bread, the only food in his room.

3,30: At the next bleep, saying the patient had arrived, Goodman was in the bath.

3.34: Another case. Goodman hurried back to the main hospital along a windy, subterranean tunnel. Watching Goodman examine the two patients, a nurse observed that at this time of night, routine tasks seemed more tricky than usual. Mistakes are easily made in the early hours, doctors say. One said he once failed to read an electro-cardiogram correctly, and did not detect a heart beating too fast and liable to stop. In this case the error was spotted in time. 7 am: The sky outside was turning an inky blue. Nurses flocked in for the morning shift as Goodman

IF an employee resigns after more than five years of service, what are the end of service benefits in the private sector?

R. Kumar

Shualba You have not stated whether you have a contract for a "limited period" or an "unlimited period". A limited period contract says you are hired for one, two or more years. An "unlimited period" contract is renewed automatically.

If a "limited period" contract is renewed before the date of expiry, it is considered renewed for an "unlimited period." In other words, your employment and termination is governed by Article 53 of the Private Sector Labour Law, which states that "Either of the two parties may terminate a contract after giving a written notice (a) atleast 15 days before the termination of a contract in the case of a salaried employee; (b) atleast seven days before the end of a contract in case of a labourer (on daily, weekly or hourly wages)."

The law says that "The party terminating the contract may pay to the other party an amount in lieu of notice, equal to a labourer's wages for the notice period, i.e. 15 days or seven days wages."

End of service indemnity is calculated thus (a) ten day wages for every one year of service for the first five years of service (hour, daily or weekly wage earners); (b) 15 day wages for each year in the first five years of service, and a month's wages for each year thereafter. The total indemnity is not more than one-and-a-half year's wages. This was explained in the Action Line column on April 1.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Motti Amihai, asked the same question at a briefing with foreign correspondents, replied:

Polls spell trouble

An Israeli ploy

By Paul Taylor

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, (Reuter): Elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir proposed to President Bush in Washington on Thursday, are viewed with almost equal distrust by Israelis and Palestinians.

Israeli officials fear polling would legitimise Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) supremacy in the occupied areas.

"The last elections in 1976 were considered a disaster by almost every Israeli leader. They gave a boost to the PLO in the territories." a Foreign Ministry official said. "There is a certain trauma left." Palestinians, on the other hand, see elections as an Israeli ploy to set up an alternative leadership to the PLO, impose limited self-rule and perpetuate Israeli control over the territories. Aides say Shamir, a hardline nationalist, embraced the idea with trepidation in hopes of stopping a 16-month-old Palestinian uprising. which his Army has failed to crush. For just that reason, many of the 1.75 million Palestinians under Israeli occupation oppose elections as an attempt to divert, divide and

Some critics believe the Israeli leader is secretly hoping the PLO will veto the plan and save him from ever having to conduct the elections. "If the PLO rejects the idea, at least we have achieved something. For two years, Israel has been rejecting ideas, now the PLO will be rejecting." the Foreign Ministry official said. For the Palestinians, elections raise innumerable problems. The fragile unity among rival factions forged during the uprising could fall apart over the distribution of mayoral offices and council seats. The Islamic resistance movement Hamas and the PLO-backed Unified National Leadership of the Uprising would be unlikely to agree to any joint list. Competition between them could easily turn violent, triggering Israeli military intervention.

Israel would almost certainly exclude Arab East Jerusalem, annexed after the 1967 Middle East war, from any Palestinian elections, since it regards the area as sovereign Israeli territory.

That would disenfranchise 145,000 Palestinians and bar many senior pro-PLO leaders from running, including Faisal Al Husseini, Hanna Siniora and Sari Nusseibeh.

If municipal elections were conducted using Jordanian law, as Israel did in 1972 and 1976, most rural areas and refugee camps would be denied a vote and a limited franchise would prevail in the towns, Arab fasting month of Ramadan was generous to Kuwait, Iraq and Arabism. The paper clarified that in Ramadan last year the hijack of the Kuwaiti airliner Al Jaberiya came to an end and the Iraqi and Fao peninsula was liberated from occupation. The Jaberiya ordeal had affirmed to the world that Kuwaiti will was

Attitude towards Moscow ambivalent

By Lee Stokes

ABU DHABI, (UPI): The US Navy's gradual withdrawal from the Gulf after the suspension of fran-Iraq hostilities coincides with what American defence chiefs describe as an expanding Soviet military presence in the strategic waterway.

But while military planners say the Soviet presence poses a potential threat to Western interests in a region through which a fifth of the free world's oil flows, some of Washington's European and Gulf Arab allies do not see increasing numbers of Russian sailors as cause for great concern.

For them, the major problem was the Iran-Iraq war. None of America's allies dispute the US naval presence in the Gulf played a key role in persuading Iran to stop fighting and talk peace Even a senior Iranian official agreed the presence of the US fleet persuaded Tehran it could not win its

But attitudes to the Soviet Union are ambivalent even among states that supported unified action to halt Tehran's attacks on neutral shipping. European nations such as France, which withdrew from Nato's integrated military structure under President Charles de Gaulle, and neutral Gulf Arab states such as the United Arab Emirates. which maintains close ties with the Soviet bloc. say Moscow poses no threat to their regional interests.

"The Soviet Union poses no threat to French interests in the Indian Ocean and the Gulf," said Rear Adm. Guy Labouerie, 55, commander-inchief of France's Indian Ocean fleet, which oversees operations in the Gulf.

The Indian Ocean is very important for the Soviet Union's commercial traffic between East and West," Labouerie said during a recent visit to Bahrain. "The Trans-Siberian railway is unable to ssume all requirements to move goods."

UAE government officials dismiss assessments that improving Soviet-Saudi Arabian ties would make it easier for the Emirates to grant Moscow port facilities for its Gulf fleet within the strategic waterway at some future date.

Unlike the United States, the Soviet Union enjoys no permanent anchorage in Gulf waters. There is no Soviet threat here," said one UAE official in Abu Dhabi. "We are an open country, and have friendly relations with all states, including the Soviet Union. Iran under its leader Ayatollah Khomeini welcomed the Soviet naval presence as necessary balance to imperialist forces in the region." Even anti-communist states such as Saudi Ārabia have not spoken out against the Russian presence. And Kuwait, which asked the Soviets to protect its tankers from Iranian attack, prompting US response, also has not yet asked the Soviets to withdraw now the Iran-Iraq conflict appears to be over.

That leaves Washington, which recently pulled out three minesweepers and a support vessel from the Gulf in the Navy's biggest withdrawal from the volatile waterway since the Aug 20 UN-brokered Gulf War ceasefire, with the dilemma of how to face what its officers perceive to be growing Soviet US ally Britain withdrew its own minesweeping force from the Gulf earlier this year, and France ordered its Clemenceau battle group to other duties in the Indian Ocean. Italian, Dutch and Belgian naval forces pulled out last year.

By contrast, the Soviets have not only maintained the level of their Gulf naval presence but also have increased its potential influence with diplomatic initiatives and military assistance programmes, according to US officials.

The Soviet pullout Feb 15 from Afghanistan and Moscow support for a Middle East conference on the Palestinian issue has allowed the Kremlin to press for closer ties with Islamic states.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, who commands US forces in the Middle East from a Tampa, Florida based central command, said there were no funds available from the Pentagon to construct a Middle East base for US forces. But he warned that unlike the United States, Moscow was actually increasing rather than unwinding its forces in the region.

"What we've seen is an increase not a decrease," Schwarzkopf said during a recent visit to the region "I see no Soviet withdrawal, as a matter of fact I see a continuing intrusion of Soviets, an increase in diplomatic initiatives and military assistance in this area ... the Soviets haven't pulled out," he said. During a swing through the Gulf that included a rare audience in Tehran with Khomeini, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called on all foreign navies to pull out of the waterway.

He was quoted as saying Moscow's naval force, sent to the Gulf two years ago at the request of Kuwait, amounted to only four warships including two minesweepers.

US military experts dispute this figure. They say US warships, planes and helicopters have spotted many more Soviet warships in the Gulf, while scores of other ships flying the Soviet ensign in the Red Sea enjoy port facilities in Aden. South Yemen, which is the Arab world's only Marxist state.

"I can tell you (Shevardnadze's) math is very bad from what we've seen," Schwarzkopf said in reference to the Soviet's tally of Russian warships in the waterway.

The Soviets now have a permanent presence in the Gulf that they never had before ... They (also) have a heavy naval presence in the Red Sea ... and an overwhelming number of military advisers and military men in many countries in this area, starting with (South) Yemen." Iraq and Ethiopia.

Western military experts believe South Yemen's defences are run by East German, Cuban and Soviet experts while Soviets, who enjoy anchorage facilities in Aden where they have an estimated 3,000 military advisers, run the country's Air Force and Navy. The experts said there were several hundred Soviet advisers in Iraq, which received a large chunk of its weapons during the Gulf war from Moscow, and Marxist Ethiopia, across the Red Sea from Saudi Arabia's vital oil wells.

The latest American withdrawal from the Gulf has left the US Navy with 10 warships in the waterway and a nine-ship carrier battlegroup in the neighbouring North Arabian Sea.

This compares with a peak of some 27 vessels last year during clashes between US and Iranian naval

The size of the US naval presence in the region is less than 20 vessels for the first time since Washington and its allies began a massive buildup of their naval forces in the wake of Iranian shipping attacks. Even in the days of Seviet glasnost and perestroika, America's military men feel no inclination to let down their guard.

pressure

By Brendan Boyle

CAPETOWN, (Reuter): President P. W. Botha has buckled to political pressure for his retirement, announcing elections that will clear the way for National Party leader F. W. de Klerk to succeed him. De Klerk, 53, would be president of South Africa before the end of the year, government and party sources said. Botha hinted on Thursday he would not seek a third five-year term as head of government when he addressed a special joint sitting of the segregated white, mixed-race coloured and Indian Houses of Information Minister Stoffel van der Mepwe said the ruling White National Party (NP) would not give him any option.

"The (NP) caucus has made it clear that its candidate for the presidency will be leader-in-chief of the party and that is Mr. F. W. de Van der Merwe said no election date had been set but it would probably take place between mid-July and late September.

Botha. 73, has resisted party pressure for him to step down since Feb 2, when he resigned the NP leadership after a mild stroke on Jan 18. The party caucus elected Education Minister De Klerk as NP leader and immediately began pressing Botha to quit.
Party souces said they were tired of Botha's autocratic style and his refuctance to implement sweeping race law reforms considered essential to South Africa's peace and economic prosperity. NP Members of Parliament said privately he was out of touch with the mood of the country. Botha rejected a unanimous party vote in March for unification of the posts of president and party leader under De Klerk. He said in a defiant television interview on March 12 he would remain President for at least another year.

But on Thursday he finally backed down. With his wife Elize and his three Houses of Parliament.

"After the election of the new Parliament, arrangements will ... have to be made for constituting an electoral college to elect a new state President," Botha said.

South Africa's 26 million blacks have no vote at the national level and the election of the NP's presidential candidate is a formality.

A senior NP source said after Botha's speech that his message was a compromise between his earlier intention to cling to power and the party's wish to have De Klerk take over as soon as possible.

"The caucus faced a dilemma in that it wanted to see the leadership change as soon as possible, but that could not be done without major upheaval.

"In this way, by letting him serve out his full term — but no longer he can be allowed to go without loss of face," the source said. He said some party members were unhappy with the compromise, which will keep De Klerk out of power for four to six months but added:

"It was the best we could do."

Cape Town University political scientist Professor Robert Schripe said of Botha: "I think it is probably true to say that he is the most disliked and the least respected leader the National Party has had since it came to power in 1948. "He survived through the force of his own personality, his vindictiveness and the fear he inspires in others."

Both succeeded B. J. Vorster as prime minister in September 1978. He stunned colleagues who considered him a conservative when he told South Africa's privileged white minority they would have to "adapt or

More than 2,500 blacks were killed and thousands maimed in riots and clashes with police and soldiers from 1984 to 1986.

Security forces were given almost unlimited power under a state of emergency imposed in June 1986. Black opposition groups were silenced. More than 30,000 people were detained without charge, some of them for almost three years. Botha refused to bow to crippling Western sanctions to give blacks the vote. But he sought repeatedly to negotiate with moderate black leaders on a system of power sharing that would keep control in white hands. "The party needs a more modern leader now — someone who can react to the fast-changing pace of political life. Mr Botha could not accept that," a senior NP member said.

Civilised people simply do not glorify atrocities

French royalists not amused by bicentenary celebrations

By Michela Wrong

PARIS. (Reuter): Royalists here are far from amused as France prepares to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution. The French monarchists see the decision to commemorate a national trauma which led to both King Louis

XVI and Queen Marie Autoinette being guillotined as a gesture in the worst possible taste. "How can one celebrate a revolution which caused more than a million deaths without a shudder of horror?" says Daniel Hamiche, press spokesman for the Duke of Anjou's Support Group, one of two rival organisations campaigning for the restoration of the French throne. "Civilised people simply do not glorify such atrocities," he adds with distaste For the royalists, the bloody 1789 revolution which brought down the monarchy, ravaged the aristocracy and ushered in a republic was a disaster which spelt the end of France's dominance in Europe and left it permanently scarred.

They regard it as absurd and outrageous for France to commemorate what they see as a national humiliation with year-long events climaxing with a Paris procession and all-night concert marking the mob's storming of the Bastille on July 14.

Earlier this year masked skinheads shouting "Long live the king" attacked soprano Helene Delaault during a recital of popular revolutionary songs, wrestling her to the ground, sitting on her chest and spraying her with tear-gas. Royalists are bitterly split over the tricky question of whether the Duke of Anjou or the Count of Paris is rightful heir to the throne. But while remaining deliberately vague about just how many members they have, both organisations claim support is on the rise, with young people swelling the ranks of the new recruits. "French people are becoming more and more disillusioned with the political system, there is a widespread feeling of revulsion at what they see as petty party squabblings," says Pierre Pujo, who heads the group supporting the Count of Paris' claim. Pujo, who runs the royalist newspaper

Aspects de la France from a small office a stone's throw from the Louvre museum, says he sells over 30,000 copies and has many more supporters. He admits that many of the new recruits are former members of the farright National Front party, rejected by establishment and press for its virulent anti-immigrant stand. "We give them something the National Front, which is too mixed up in politics, cannot offer, he says.

Hamiche says his group numbers tens of thousands of followers, cutting across social classes and ages, including both workers and the middle-class. It is particularly strong among conservative Catholic families from the provinces.

These members are attracted by one simple idea — that France is in crying need of a neutral figure standing above the political fray, to unite the nation and

CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF THE

Hamiche imagines that popular pressure could eventually lead to a national referendum ushering in the restoration. Pujo believes growing cynicism with French politics will cause a major crisis making change inevitable. Of course, one issue would then need candidates should wear the crown?

One is 15-year-old Spanish schoolboy

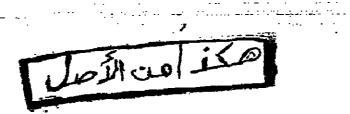

Louis de Bourbon, still more interested in computers and sport, who inherited the Anjou title when his father Alphonse died in a skiing accident in January.

The other is 24-year-old law student Jean D'Orleans, named less than two years ago royal heir by 80-year-old pretender Henri D'Orleans, the patriarchal Count of Paris. The dispute dates back to the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, when the kings of France and Spain — Louis XIV and Philip V. signed away any dynastic rights to each other's thrones. Present-day supporters of the Spanish claim argue that royal status is a God-given right which cannot be negotiated or renounced, leaving young Louis as France's rightful sovereign.

But the "Orleanists" say the treaty still stands, and in any case, they say, the French would simply never accept a Spanish king.

Some bankers said domestic foreign currency loan made when the dollar was worth 0.80 pounds were likely to be dropped, at least in part, as bad debts.

Bankers expect the shortage to worsen later this month when tens of thousands of Muslims turn to the black market for dollars to perform the umra, or minor pilgrimage to Makkah, during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

Foreign exchange revenues from the official market, which has brought about $5.3 billion into the banking system since its establishment, are only used to finance imports. The black market supplies dollars for other transactions.

Bankers said the government and public sector projects were the main beneficiary of the hard currency revenues of the official market, leaving the private sector and other Egyptians to fill their needs from the black market.

Prices drop in Japan

Inflation rising in major countries

WASHINGTON, April 7, (AP): Prices paid by consumers in major countries have been rising sharply this year, according to figures compiled by the US Central Intelligence Agency.

Japan was the exception. In Japan, prices were dropping rather than rising in January and February at the rate of 2.3 per cent a year. Japan also was increasing its production faster than the others. Its industry was turning out goods at an annual rate 15.2 per cent higher in January than in

bers warned, "inflation pressures

On Tuesday, representatives of the fund's 151 member governments agreed that there were signs of intensifying pressure to push prices up. The figures from the CIA's directorate of intelligence covered January for the seven major countries and February for most of them. Last year, the rise of US consumer prices was 4.1 per cent, in January the annual rate was 7.2 per cent. In February, it was 5.1 per cent, though the figure was published too late for inclusion in the CIA table, which was dated March 24 and made available to reporters this week.

West Germany, where the price rise was only 1.2 percent for 1988, showed a surge to an annual 9 per cent inflation rate in January, but it moderated to 5.1 per cent in February. West German authorities, mindful of big inflation in the 1920s and 1940s. are among the most concerned to keep prices down.

Italy, a comparatively highinflation country, held its rate to o per cent la 6.4 per cent in January and 9.5 per cent in February.

France's annual inflation rate, only 2.7 per cent in 1988, hit 3.7 per cent in January and 4.4 per cent in February.

For Britain, only the January figure was available: an annual rate of 8.6 per cent compared with the 4.9 per cent of 1988. Canada's 4 per cent for the year rose to 7.2 per cent in January and 6.3 per cent in February.

World oil prices tumble

LONDON, April 7. (Reuter): World crude oil prices fell for the second day in a row yesterday as. traders saw an end to disruptions of Alaskan shipments caused by a massive oil spill.

The Valdez effect is over. said one trader.

He was referring to 19-month oil price highs reached after an Exxon Corp. tanker ran aground on March 24, and disgorged 240,000 barrels of crude in the worst such disaster in US history.

Closure of the port fuelled existing concern about tighter world supplies and nudged prices to their highest since a Gulf war flareup in August 1987.

At the end of the Europeun trading day. North Sea Brent blend, the world's most widely quoted crude, was off 40 cents. Cargoes for immediate delivery were quoted at $19.35 a barrel compared with 19.75 at the same time on Wednesday but activity was very subdued.
The US Coast Guard said the reopened port of Valdez will operate in daylight hours only for an indeterminate time.

The US benchmark West Texas Intermediate was down 35 cents at $19.90 a barrel by the end of the European day. Dubai, the key Middle East grade, was off 40 cents at $15.95 a barrel.

Traders estimated the temporary closure of Valdez cut Alaskan output by a total of around 12 to 13 million barrels.

Minister blames speculators for Argentine currency stumble

BUENOS AIRES. April 7, (Reuter): A day after Argentina's currency was devalued 21.5 per cent, New Economy Minister Juan Carlos Pugliese warned yesterday of speculators pushing down the austral's free market

"There is a clique of speculators, (in) the famous 20 blocks around Buenos Aires' port, who care very little for the minister's credibility, Pugliese, who was sworn in on Tuesday. told reporters.

The austral's free market quotation on Wednesday dropped to 48.25 per dollar from 42.75. Yesterday it opened at 48.60 per dollar. President Raul Alfonsin, whose radical party lags behind the opposition Peronists in opinion polls 38 days before general elections, named Pugliese as economy chief in a bid to calm Argentina's hair-trigger markets ahead of the May 14 polls.

Currency dealers said the austral fell on Wednesday because dollar-holding exporters stayed out of the market and importers actively bought dollar futures, all of them hedging against downturns in the austral.

Pugliese, who replaced Juan Sourrouille as economy minister, said he would appeal to consumers and political activists to check the mounting double-digit monthly inflation.

Political opponents and local economists say Alfonsin named Pugliese, a highly respected political figure, to build up the markets' confidence in his gover-nment and increase radical presidential candidate Eduardo Angelos' chances against Peronist Čarlos Menem.

IFAD loan for Dhaka ROME, April 7. (OPECNA): The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) is to extend $7.16 million in the form of a "highly congressional" loan to Bangladesh. The rest of the funding will come from the Danish govern-ment and from Bangladesh's own resources.

The credit will help finance the implementation of an IFADsponsored fisheries management scheme aimed at increasing the income of small-scale fishermen. IFAD said the loan was in direct response to a Bangladeshi request for assistance in implementing a new fisheries policy, fishing communities being among the poorest of the country's rural population.

About 6,800 households will directly benefit from the project, with increases in their annual incomes ranging from $75 to 195. The scheme hinges on organising the local population into groups which will be encouraged to become increasingly responsi-ble for good fishing practices. fishing stocking, lake maintenance and proper resource utilisa-tion of both lake waters and the surrounding areas.

"There is a growing feeling in the party that with Takeshita as prime minister they will suffer a severe setback in any election which comes along," he said. "It must be the worst situation the party has ever experienced," said Hitoshi Abe, political science professor at the broadcasting university.

"Something has to be done immediately or there is a possibility that the opposition will take over the majority in the Diet (parliament) at the next election." he added.

Some media reports said a number of junior LDP members of Parliament had created a new group that wanted Takeshita out. A spokesman for legislator Shintaro Ishihara confirmed that a group had been formed, but declined to specify what its policy was.

Abe said: "Those members have decided to stand up to help the party. They must have felt that they could put some pressure on senior members to solve the crisis. "The group is unlikely to press Takeshita to resign in the immediate future, but if he does nothing to stop the crisis, the group will take a radical action Opposition party leaders met today and agreed to keep up their demands for Takeshita's resignation over the scandal.

LONDON, APRIL 7, REUTER - THE FISE 100 SHARE INDEX OPENED 21.3 POINTS DOWN AT 2031.2, FOLLOWING A 25 POINT FALL YESTERDAY, AS RESURGENT WORRIES OVER THE U.K. ECONOMY AND JITTERS AMEAD OF KEY U.S. DATA TODAY, DEEPENED THE MARKET'S GLOOM.

DEALERS SAID NEW WARNINGS BY CITY ECONOMISTS OF A "HARD LANDING" FOR THE U.K. ECONOMY HAD HIT A MARKET ALREADY RUNNING SCARED OVER A WEAK POUND AND THREATS OF HIGHER INTEREST RATES. THE PROXIMITY OF U.S. EMPLOYMENT FIGURES WHICH ARE EXPECTED TO SET THE NEAR TERM COURSE OF INTEREST RATES THERE, ADDED TO THE DEPRESSION. "IT'S ALL COME TOGETHER AT THE WRONG TIME. WE'RE LOOKING AT A MAJOR CORRECTION HERE," SAID ONE TRADER. DEALERS SAID CONCERN OVER THE U.K. ECONOMY HAD BEEN HEIGHTENED BY A REPORT FROM PHILLIPS & DREW ECONOMIST BILL MARTIN. "WE HAVE SHIFTED OUR RECOMMENDATION ON THE BRITISH ECONOMY FROM "HOLD" TO "SELL". WE NOW SEE IT DRIFTING INTO A PERIOD OF STAGFLATION", MARTIN SAID.

HE BELIEVES THE BEST ROUTE TO SLOWER GROWTH AND CONTROLLED INFLATION IS THROUGH A QUICK DOSE OF DEFLATION, PERHAPS BY ANOTHER TWO POINTS ON INTEREST RATES. HE DID NOT THINK CHANCELLOR LAWSON HAD THE STOMACH FOR SUCH SHOCK TREATMENT, HOWEVER, AND THE ECONOMY'S SLOW DOWN WOULD BECOME A LONG PROTRACTED AFFAIR WITH INFLATION BECOMING INGRAINED.

Precious Metals

LONDON, APRIL 7. REUTER - GOLD BULLION TRADING REMAINED DULL THIS MORNING WITH OPERATORS HESITANT AHEAD OF THE RELEASE OF THE U.S. MARCH EMPLOYMENT DATA DUE AT 1230 GMT TODAY, DEALERS SAID. GOLD FIXED SWIFTLY AT 384.40 DLRE AN OUNCE, LITTLE CHANGED FROM ITS OPENING AND THURSDAY'S CLOSE OF 383.90/384.40 AND 384.50/385.00 DLRS RESPECTIVELY.

PALLADIUM CONTINUED TO GAIN GROUND. IT WAS FIXED AT 167.75 DLRS AN OUNCE, UP 1.50 DLRS FROM THURSDAY AFTERNOON AND ITS HIGHEST LEVEL SINCE LATE DECEMBER 1983. PALLADIUM'S FIRMNESS REFLECTS INTEREST IN ITS USE IN COLD NUCLEAR FUSION EXPERIMENTS, WHICH PROMPTED RENEWED SPECULATIVE BUYING, DEALERS SAID.

London Money Market

LONDON, APRIL 7, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES WERE AROUND 1/16 POINT FIRMER IN QUIET MORNING TRADE AS THE MARKET BECAME INCREASINGLY MORE PESSIMISTIC OVER THE OUTLOOK FOR U.K. INTEREST RATES, DEALERS SAID.

COMMENTS MADE LAST NIGHT BY BANK OF ENGLAND GOVERNOR ROBIN LEIGH-PENBERTON, EXPRESSING CONCERN OVER THE THREAT OF LARGE WAGE RISES, WERE COMPOUNDING MARKET SPECUALTION THAT BASE RATES

MAY HAVE TO RISE, TRADERS SAID.
ALSO ADDING TO MARKET DEPRESSION WERE RECENT WARNINGS FROM CITY ECONOMISTS OF A HARD LANDING FOR THE ECONOMY. THE SIX MONTH STERLING INTERBANK RATE WAS 1/16 FIRMER AT 13-3/16 1/16.

TOKYO, APRIL 7, REUTER - SHARE PRICES ENDED WITH A MODERATE GAIN IN LIGHT TURNOVER AHEAD OF THE WEEKEND AND U.S. JOBS DATA DUE AT 1230 GMT TODAY. INDIVIDUAL BARGAIN-HUNTING FOR THEENTIVE-BACKED ISSUES WAS THE PILLAR HOLDING UP THE MARKET IN AN OTHERWISE DULL DAY, BROKERS SAID. THE KEY 225-SHARE NIKKEI INDEK GAINED 189.27 POINTS, OR

O.57 PCT, TO 33, 185.05, ENDING THE WEEK 346.37 POINTS, OR 1.05 PCT, HIGHER.

"THE MARKET IS STRONG, CENTRING ON BUYING BY PRIVATE CUSTOMERS, " SAID SHIGERU AKIBA, HEAD TRADER AT UBS PHILLIPS AND DREW INTERNATIONAL LTD.

*YESTERDAY THE MARKET REACTED RATHER NEGATIVELY BECAUSE OF POLITICAL UNCERTAINTY BUT NOTHING HAPPENED, " AKIBA SAID. HE ADDED THAT THURSDAY'S DECLINE ALSO RESULTED FROM PROFIT-TAKING AFTER SEVEN STRAIGHT GAINS. IT WAS A GOOD CHANCE TO CHECK IF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS WOULD COME IN AND BUY AT

LON LEVELS, HE SAID. THEY DID. THE MIKKET INDEX FELL 365.01 POINTS ON THURSDAY, JUST SHY OF ITS BIGGEST ONE-DAY DROP THIS YEAR, BUT RECOUPED SOMEWHAT FROM ITS 521.54-POINT PLUNGE TO THE DAY'S LOW 32,839.27. INSTITUTIONS, HOWEVER, WERE MOSTLY SIDELINED TODAY

AMAITING FURTHER HINTS OF THE OUTLOOK FOR THE U.S. ECONOMY. BROKERS SAID THE MARKET GENERALLY EXPECTS U.S. NOR-FARM PAYROLLS TO INCREASE BY 210,000 TO 250,000 IN MARCH AFTER A 289,000 GATN IN FEBRUARY AND SEES AN UNEMPLOYMENT RATE OF 5.1 OR 5.2 PCT AGAINST 5.1 PCT IN FEBRUARY. UNEXPECTEDLY STRONG JOB GROWTH WOULD SE BAD NEWS FOR THE MARKET SINCE IT

HIGHT RESULT IN U.S. INTEREST RATE RISES TO QUELL INFLATION. HIGHER U.S. RATES COULD SPUR DOLLAR BUYING FOR YEN, AND A HEAKER YEN COULD HEAN INFLATIONARY PRESSURE IN JAPAN BECAUSE OF HIGHER IMPORT COSTS. THAT COULD BRING INTEREST RATE RISES. THE BROADER FIRST SECTION INDEX, OR TOPIX, FIRMED 4.57 POINTS TO 2,474.35 AFTER FALLING 24.96 POINTS ON THURSDAY.

Hong Kong Market Report

HONG KONG, APRIL 7, RELITER - HONG KONG STOCKS ADVANCED SLIGHTLY ON SCATTERED BUYING IN THIN TRADE, BROKERS SAID. THE TITUTIONS HAVE SEEN BUYING SHARES BUT NOT IN ANY QUANTITY AND THE SHALLER BROKERS HAVE BEEN ACTIVE, WHICH SUGGESTS SOME RETAIL ACTIVITY," A BROKER SAID.

MESTS SUFE RELIAIT RESTING THE WATER, AMOTHER SAID.

"IT'S A CASE OF TESTING THE WATER," AMOTHER SAID.

THE HANG SENG INDEX PUT ON 8.58 POINTS TO END THE WEEK AT 3,024_D9 WHILE THE BROADER-BASED HONG KONG INDEX GAINED 5.66

TURNOVER REMAINED THIN AT 875.86 MLN. H.K. DLRS COMPARED POINTS TO 2,003.00. WITH 868.31 MLM ON THURSDAY.

Short-dated Kuwait dinar deposits firm in thin trade

KUWAIT, April 7, (Reuter): Short-dated Kuwaiti dinar inter-bank deposits firmed in thin trade yesterday as operators borrowed short-dated funds, but there were few fresh factors to give the market direction.

Dealers said quotes for overnight funds rose sharply as most traders were caught short. Deals were reported at 9-1/2, then 9-1/4 per cent, down from offers of three per cent on Wednesday.

Spot-next and one-week also firmed to 9-1/2, 8-1/2 per cent from quotes of 8-1/2, 7-1/2. The one-month was marked up 1/4 point to 9-3/4, 1/4 per cent. The rest of the fixed periods were quiet, with two-months to oneyear indicated at 9-3/8, 1/4.

Dealers said fixed period rates were likely to remain steady due to the Muslim fasting month of Ramadan until end-April salary payments begin entering the system in two weeks time.

The Central Bank adjusted its dinar exchange rate softer to 0.28952/62 to the dollar from 0.28935/45 on Wednesday. Commercial banks quoted spot rates of 0.28927/29002.

Meanwhile, Saudi riyal interbank deposit rates were mainly steady in thin trade yesterday as the Muslim fasting month of Ramadan began in Arabia, but short-dated funds firmed on technical factors.

Dealers said many traders were sidelined ahead of the release today of US March employment figures. Riyal deposits often closely track dollar interest rates. Business normally slackens

Iran to spend more on rebuilding oil industry

NICOSIA, Cyprus, April 7, (AP): Iran's Oil Minister, Gholamreza Aqazadeh, said yesterday that rebuilding refineries and offshore platforms damaged in the Gulf war takes a high priority in the country's economic reconstruction programme, the official Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA) reported.

The agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Aqazudeh as saying another $714 million will be allocated for rebuilding the oil industry.

He spoke in the western city of Hamedan at the inauguration of a gas pipeline project to supply domestic needs in the region, IRNA said.

Iran's oil industry suffered about $15 billion worth of damages during the war, according to unofficial estimates.

Iran reportedly already has spent more than $750 million on oil industry reconstruction since a United Nations-sponsored ceasefire took effect last Aug 20 in the 8-year war with Iraq.

continuing.

Iran also is to award four contracts worth about $700 million for construction and repair of offshore platforms damaged in the war.

The Sirri, Abuzar and Salman platforms are to be rebuilt by foreign firms at a reported cost of $100, 200, and 300 million respectively.

The Salman rig was hit in a 1986 Iraqi missile attack. It also was shelled by US warships and damaged in explosions triggered by US Marine Corps demolition teams last Apirl. Priority

Industry experts say the rig can be rebuilt in nine months and could be producing 15 months after the contract is

The western Iran gas pipeline network, costing $277 million is the biggest gas-related project undertaken by the Islamic Republic to date, IRNA said.

Last week the Maroun gas injection unit, rebuilt at a cost of $1 billion, started operation.

The unit, in southwest Khuzestan province, can inject gas from surrounding fields into low-pressure oil fields, and thus boost Iran's recoverable oil reserves by more than 2.5 billion barrels. Iran currently estimates its oil reserves exceed 93 billion barrels.

Meanwhile, in an effort to control runaway inflation and excessive shortages of commodities, Iran's Chief Justic Musavi Ardebili yesterday announced a new crackdown on shopkeepers who hoard goods and overcharge, Tehran Radio

The broadcast, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Ardebili as saying that 7,000 inspectors will be chosen by the Islamic courts and deployed throughout the country to identify offenders.

He said that offenders will be tried and convicted by any of the Islamic courts or magistrates throughout the country.

The Islamic courts stand separate from the judicial courts, and are run by clergymen familiar with Islamic law.

He said that shopkeepers were given until April 19 to put price tags on all goods, or face prosecution.

He did not say what sentences offenders would face. fran's economy was thrown into dis-

IMF mulling drastic tactics

Banks are unlikely to be quick off the mark in releasing large amounts of new loan money to the Third World as a result of the latest US proposals to tackle the international debt crisis.

governments to back the US plan, banks are expected to delay new lending in most cases until the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and, World Bank devise a plan to support debt reduction schemes, a process which could take months.

"Banks don't see new money as the solution," said Richard O'Brien, economist at American Express Bank Ltd.

The reaction is, simply, that banks are still reluctant to extend new money to the Third World," a British banker added.

The IMF interim and development committees, which together represent both creditor and debtor nations, have pointed in meetings in Washington this week to new bank lending as a key feature in attacking the $1.3 trillion Third World debt.

Planning faulted: Soviet economist system is seeking to shift the Economic prospects gloomy

MOSCOW, April 7, (Reuter): The Soviet economy will perform worse than ever this year and no real progress can be made until central planning is abandoned, a senior Soviet economist said in an article published yesterday.

Vasily Selyunin, writing in the daily Sotsialisticheskaya Industria, called for immediate major reforms to eliminate chronic shortages, particularly ending government ministries' control over production. Selyunin, whose frequent articles on the economy have earned him a reputation as a radical, said the Soviet Union's five-year plans had manifestly failed to provide well-being for its citizens in more than 60 years.

"We have failed to fulfil 11 plans already and there is virtually no chance of fulfilling the 12th," he wrote. "On the contrary, we can expect that 1989 will be the worst year of any we have seen."

Economists, he wrote, had to face the reality that real reforms reducing the budget deficit, estimated at 100 billion roubles would be constantly delayed

Reforms

"These things are incompati-ble. Either we have direct planning or proceed with reforms," he wrote. "If. god forbid, we once again set down in the 13th fiveyear plan what and how much to produce, then, as in the past, there can be no independence of enterprises and no market rela-

Selyunin's articles over the past year have called for a sys-tematic overhaul of bureaucratic structures and introduction of market-based principles, particularly initiatives from below.

His ideas on structural chanes are similar to those of senior Kremlin economic adviser Leonid Abalkin. But Abalkin, director of the Institute of Economics at the Academy of Sciences, has not suggested abandoning central planning. Selyunin said a priority was national income at 20 per cent. Selyunin also backed closing perennial loss-making enterprises and said market forces should determine the price of scarce consumer goods.

But the key reform, he wrote, was moving quickly to slash the power of government ministries, many of them obstructing Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's "perestroika" programme of economic and political reforms.

Scheme

"While such a scheme is being worked out, the ministries would have life easy and, of course, reforms would be delayed...we have no sush cushion. We must embark on economic reforms today and not spend months about it." he wrote.

NEW YORK, April 7, (AP): For the second time in a week, former baseball commissioner Peter V. Ueberroth thought he had a deal to purchase Eastern Airlines only to see the agreement with Texas Air Corp chairman Frank Lorenzo hit snags at the last minute.

A source familiar with the negotiations said the two sides reached an accord on Tuesday night and were set to make the announcement on Wednesday. The source said the deal began to unravel changing the terms of the agreement.

"Both sides thought they had a deal but there were some sticking points that kept negotiations continuing instead of concluding." the Ueberroth, who returned to New York late Tuesday night from his California home, began negotiations with Lorenzo on Wednesday morning and continued them until around 8 pm (0000 GMT). The source told the Associated Press that negotiations were to resume vesterday morning.

They don't have a deal," the source said. "There's still negotiations and sticking points. It's not done." Sources close to Texas Air, however, said Ueberroth himself raised minor sticking points that kept the deal from being consummated.

"Ueberroth is the one who is nitpicking the deal to death." said a source close to the company. Texas Air spokesman Art Kent in Houston said the company declined comment on the negotiations. Union and airline sources had indicated late Tuesday night and throughout Wednesday that a sale to the Ueberroth Group was Bruce Zirinsky, a bankruptcy attorney representing Eastern, said an accord on the sale of the carrier was "likely imminent." He didn't name the suitor but sources have said it was the Ueberroth Group, which made and later withdrew a $464-million offer for Eastern last week.

Negotiators make progress on farm subsidies

GENEVA, April 7. (Reuter): World trade negotiators made significant progress on the crucial farm subsidy problem on Thursday but delegates said important issues remained for the final day.

"We are now working on a paper that is a basis for a deal," said David Woods, spokesman for the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

"But there are still some quite serious problems," he added without elaborating.

Delegates from more than 100 countries have gathered for the three-day session ending today aimed at breathing new life in the so-called Uruguay round of talks due to be completed by 1990.

The negotiations have been in serious trouble since the socalled mid-term review of the round held in Montreal last December.

Subsidies

A deep rift developed between the United States and the European Economic Community over how to reduce farm subsidies. Countries represented by the influential 14-country Cairns Group, which includes Canada, Australia and Brazil, have also sought an end to the subsidies, saying they distort world trade.

GATT director-general Arthur Dunkel opened Thursday's session with a warning to delegates that progress so far had been much too slow, particularly on the issue of a short-term freeze on existing farm programmes.

After a short formal session, Dunkel held talks throughout the day and evening with delegations at the scenic lakeside GATT headquarters.

A senior Canadian source said the talks progressed well and significant progress was made on outstanding issues. "The deal on agriculture is three-quarters done," he added.

Delegates said food security was one of the key issues still on the negotiating table. Some governments, particularly Third World countries, are reluctant to submit to measures that would prevent domestic farmers from producing enough food for the

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Nigeria to get last part of ADB loan soon LAGOS, April 7, (OPECNA): Nigeria will receive soon the last part of a $245 million loan extended by the Africa Development Bank (ADB) for export stimulation for the country:

A source at the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) said the credit would complement the CBN's foreign input facility by serving as its main funding source.

He added that CBN would act as the executive agency for the scheme, while commercial banks would take up the role of retailers of the fund.

The release of the loan began during the third quarter of 1988.

Private enterprise to boost growth

HELSINKI, April 7. (Reuter): Private enterprise should be the HELSINKI, April 7. (Reuter): Private enterprise should be the engine of growth to raise living standards in the world's poorest states, a United Nations agency said yesterday.

The 42 nations classed by the world body as least developed countries (LDCs) should rein in the public sector and gear fiscal.

monetary, trade and licensing policy to encouraging home-grown enterprise, a meeting organised by the UN conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) concluded.

"The potential of the private enterprises of the LDCs has not been fully exploited. There could be many more and there is in our report a plea to governments of LDCs to create conditions in which private enterprise can develop," UNCTAD deputy secretary-general Yves Berthelot said. The meeting urged LDCS to improve access to domestic and foreign finance for fledgling enterprises, through strengthening banking systems and the financial markets. The public sector should be confined to strategic services. Industrialised countries were urged to lower or remove tariffs on exports from the LDCs and to scrap non-tariff barriers such as subsidies to domestic food producers.

Firms urged to propose aid projects

TOKYO, April 7, (Reuter): Japan, the world's biggest aid donor. cannot find enough good projects in poor countries to spend its money on and wants companies in the developed world to propose ideas that Japan can finance.

Azusa Hayashi, director of the Foreign Ministry's loan aid division, told reporters on Thursday that Japanese construction and trading firms were losing interest in aid-linanced projects in developing countries.

"The domestic economy is in good shape and there are lots of projects and jobs in Japan, so they don't have to go abroad." Hayashi said.

He said most developing countries lacked the ability to for-mulate good development project ideas and Japanese aid officials had traditionally relied heavily on private companies to propose projects. I request the co-operation of Japanese companies and of US and European companies. If they have a good project, bring it to Japan and let us know," Hayashi said.

Demand higher than 'OPEC quota'

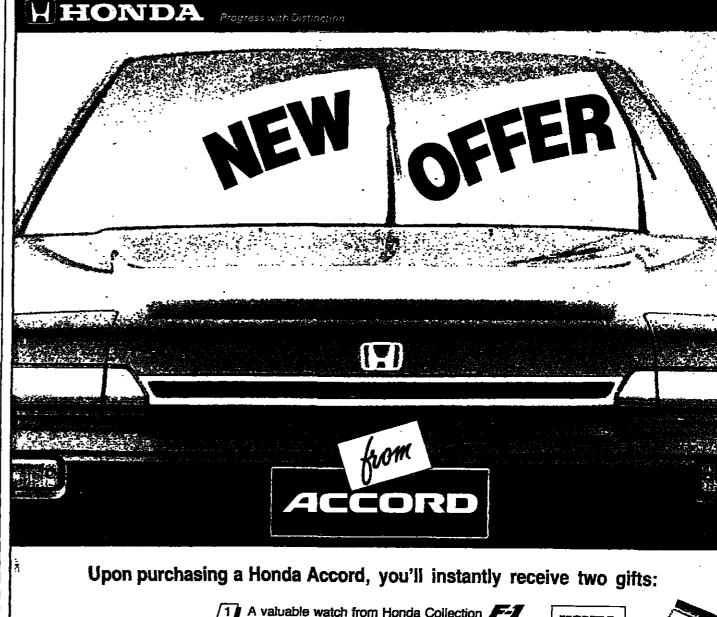

NICOSIA, April 7, (Reuter): Saudi Arabia said yesterday it had orders from customers above its OPEC quota but would abide by this limit agreed for the first half of 1989.

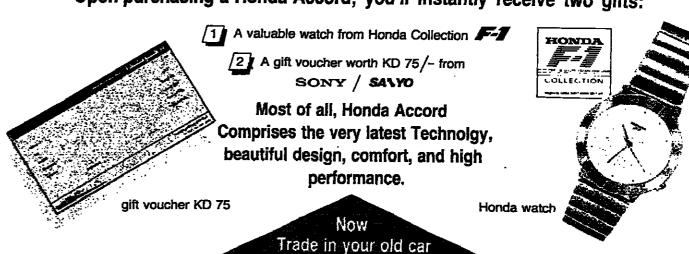

In a statement, Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said the kingdom had orders above the 4.524 million barrels per day (BPD) limit set by the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

But Saudi Arabia would adhere to its quota, Nazer said. 'Oil buyers are currently competing to buy crude from Saudi Arabia, far higher than its current quota," the official Saudi Press Agency quoted Nazer as saying.

"The Kingdom will continue to abide by (its output quota)...to keep the oil market strong," he added.

GLORIA ESTEFAN is the old-fashioned girl of pop, an anachronism who has triumphed unexpectedly in an industry which tends to prefer the manufactured image to the real thing.

She doesn't strike poses. She doesn't have affairs - indeed, she's been happily married to fellow musician Emilio Estefan for 11 years. She's not even conventionally beautiful, just approachably attractive, with her wide nose, intelligent brown eyes and curly black hair.

True, her life does have a kind of romance - but one more in keeping with a Victorian morality tale than an Eighties pop star biography. No material girl this, in spite of yet another hit, Anything For You, and a number one album.

Her rock ballads have recurrent themes of devotion and self-sacrifice, hardly the stuff of the usual Top Ten hits. 'I know the emotions of pain fairly well,' admits Gloria, now 31. 'Sometimes when something happens to someone you love, it hurts more than going through it yourself.

I had no adolescence. I went from the age of 13 looking after my sick father until he died five years later. He was suffering from a disease similar to multiple sclerosis. His dementia was rapid, he couldn't speak, walk or feed himself.

It is something which is so painful I could never write a song about it directly. I learned to deal with these powerful emotions at an early age. Now the pain comes out through other emotions people can more easily relate

Gloria was an introverted, frumpy child who barely knew the father she nursed. He

During his illness, Gloria's mother worked all day and studied all evening to become a teacher. 'I was the only one there for him, 'says Gloria. 'When he died I suddenly had a role, apart from looking after people. Suddenly I could have fun.' But not too much fun.

One of her first excursions after her father's death was to a friend's wedding where she met Emilio. No one could have been more flattered than Gloria when he mentioned his band were short of a singer.

'I sang in Emillio's band for two years before we started dating. He was such a womaniser and always interested in older women. But he was attracted to me because I was so mature for my years, and although he's seven years older, we never noticed the difference. I still never thought I had a

She was short, chubby, with thick glasses, and an unflattering bob haircut. With extraordinary self-will, Gloria set about changing every feature that she did not like. The wild hair is not naturally curly and the slim thighs have spent an hour pumping on a cycle machine each morning.
Success did not come easily either. She spent seven years singing in Spanish at weddings, gradually developing a distinctive salsa disco style before maturing into today's ballad singer.

While building Gloria's confidence, Emilio also built his wife into one of America's biggest singing stars.

Hers truly is the most conventional of love affairs; she has only ever been in love with Emilio. "But I know only too well the sort of person I would have been without him basically a complete nervous wreck. It is a tempestuous rélationship. He's left me several times, he's got a terrible temper. But he always calms down quickly, always > that is Madonna at her worst. The wistfully upbeat title track and "Express Yourself", a whoop of joy worthy of Sly Stone, help to pull the thing out of the mire. Mindless bedonism is ber natural habitat.

"Like A Prayer" is as glossy and contrived as the Herb Ritts portrait of Madonna's jewelencrusted midriff on the front cover. There's the bump-andgrind duet with Prince, complete with insinuating "Allo Allo" French, the brain-dead Valentine "Cherish" and the mouruful "Spanish Eyes", which could conceivably be a hit if she takes off enough clothes in the video.

Madonna does not make the leap from disco diva to serious artist. Like Debbie Harry before her, she covets the mythic glamour of Monroe's golden halo, though with her dreadful films, violent marriage and mediocre product like this new album, she is unfortunately much closer to Jayne Mansfield.

Annie's new career

SINGER Annie Lennox, who lost her baby in December, is hoping to launch a new career as an actress. Later this year the Eurythmics star will be seen in a film of Harold Pinter's play The Room. Annie, 34, appears with Linda Hunt, who won an Oscar for The Year of Living Dangerously.

The Room was shot in Canada two years ago and Aberdeenborn Annie hopes more film offers will follow. She was offered the part by Hollywood director Robert Altman and appears as the sinister Mrs Sands.

Annie had a small part in the big budget Al Pacino film Revolution but she said of The Room: 'I got as big a kick out of making that as appearing on hand is a prime example. North judged well in removing the double of five clubs. While it is true that with the lead of ace of hearts and a continuation that contract would have failed by a trick, on the more normal diamond lead declarer would have romped home.

She has no plans to quit pop music. She starts work on an album soon and the Erythmics are likely to tour at Christmas.

East's ace of clubs took the first trick, and he shifted to the queen of hearts. Declarer won his ace, led a diamond to the ace and returned a diamond to the nine. After the queen of diamonds lost to the king, declarer ruffed the club return and drew the last trump. The crucial point of the hand had been reached. How should declarer play the spade suit?

Those who follow rubrics would remember 'Eight ever, nine never' and blithely cash the ace-king. But is that logical in the light of the auction and play?

East surely has a six-card club suit and has shown up with four diamonds. If he had a singleton heart, West's distribution would have been 2-7-0-4, and he would ing him with only one spade. Therefore, the almost sure-trick line is for declarer to cash the ace of spades and then finesse the jack to land his contract.

YOUR STARS

Aries (March 20 - April 18)

You should have the courage of our convictions. You will have to try just a little harder. Nothing will be quite as you would wish but you will be able to make the best of it. Be time well spent. You should listen more carefully to what others are saying. Do not chat too long on the phone. Be respectful.

You would be wrong to try to prove what a clever chap you are: let your actions speak for you. Take a while to distinguish what is from what you think it is. Avoid giving up too soon. Be amenable.

Cancer (June 21 - July 21) You must make sure you do not leave things half unfinished. Make sure you get enough rest but do not "lie in". Remember there is nothing wrong with showing your gratitude. Your lucky numbers are 45 and 5. Be frank.

Do not allow yourself to be dominated by the television set. You will be able to do something to make up for lost time. You will be able to remedy a mistake, either you or someone close to you has made. Be moderate.

Something about which you have been deluding yourself will suddenly become clear. You will have to take action, but you will find the energy and willpower needed to do so. Do not neglect an infection, see a doctor if it gets worse. Be less negligent.

CINE ROUND-UP FROM BOMBAY

by Firoze Rangoonwalla

Busy time for producers, directors

'Bollywood' stars on a shooting spree

A RECENT round of the studios and of the various shooting locations gives one a glimpse of the heady stuff being brewed and the delicacies being cooked by our producers and directors.

The shooting charts show an upward swing, as several films are making rapid progress. And the stars are busy as ever, shooting in two or three shifts and hopping from one place to another. They are also making pots of money in the process. A lot of money seems to have been pumped in the making of Angaar by producer-cum-financier R.K. Jain, who is backing director Shashilal Nair bravely after his recent debacle of flops. Also with a finger in the pie is Jackie Shroff, who is putting his own and wife Ayesha's money in order to make it big as a solo hero (without Anil Kapoor being anywhere near it).

A tremendously big shanty town has been erected for Angaar behind the Lokhandwala Complex, which is fast developing as a junior film colony. More than 22,000 square metres of marshy land has been converted into a residential slum, spread over seven different sets, with houses, shops, hydrants, lamp posts and all. The art director Verman indeed deserves credit for this massive operation. After the Mysore fire tragedy, they have kept safety arrangements too in plenty.

The director has changed the spelling of his name to K. Shashi Laal Nair (to cast off the spell of bad luck) and is working very hard to make Anguar a big hit. He explains his theme by saying: The film shows the domination of the dons and slumlords, affectmg the small world of the poor 'chawl' dwellers. And we also question violence as a solution to end violence". Jackie enjoys playing the underdog, like a trendy hero. He belongs to the educated unemployed and takes up the cause of the "basti", when the big sharks want to destroy it to make way for skyscrapers.

Quarrel

After the much-publicised quarrel with Dimple, when her father was removed from the partnership after which she also moved out, "Angaar" has been a lot in the limelight. Now, Dimple has withdrawn her public notice. and is back in the film, playing an orphan girl rescued and protected by Jackie in his house. Anupam Kher who also served a legal notice is expected to come Kiran Kumar, Om Puri, Nana Patekar, Achyut Poddar are doing other roles alongwith hundreds of extras. Nair expects to release the film in May.

Another film progressing rapidly is Apna Desh Paraye Log without a big cast or budget. The title song (a popular wornout formula) and the climax have been filmed. Pradeep Hoods a new director pilots the film with Suresh Oberoi, Sumeet Saigal and attractive starlets Sonu Walia, Moon Moon Sen, Tina Ghai and Neeta Puri. Sadashiv Amrapurkar and Ishrat Ali will be the villains and another Babbar called Sunil is being introduced.

Another film completed with small stars is Muqaddar Meri Mutthi Mein. Directed by Ambrish Sangal, it has Dilip Dhavan, Sushma Prakash, Mazhar Khan, Ajit Vachani and Kalpana Iyer. Music is composed by Sharang Dev.

Among Amitabh's films, Agneepath seems to be making the quickest progress. The tall star has lost faith in fun and stunt movies, for the present and prefers a taut narrative with a strong character. He also seems to approve of Mukul Anand's direction, in the hope of making another hit like Insaaf. But the supporting cast with Madhavi and Neelam as heroines is not strong and Mithun as a parallel hero may not co-operate very much. The film is still lying unsold for Bombay, Delhi, and four other zones. Akayla directed by Ramesh Sippy has a stronger support for Amitabh with Meenakshi, Amrita, Shashi Kapoor, Jackie, Aditya. Even so, distributors have not booked it for six major regions. Dimple's pet film Haq, directed by Harish Bhosle from a fiery story provided by Mahesh Bhatt, met some rapid schedules dated at Madh Island and Filmistan Studio. After Vardi, some more unusual scenes were shot at the huge swimming pool of Big Splash Hotel for Yodha. Last time, we had Sunny and Jackie plunging in to make a splash over Kimi. This time it was director Rahul Rawaii filming a motor bike stunt with Sunny and stuntman, with the girl in the pool being Sangeeta Bijlani. The film's other hero is Sunjay Dutt. Yodha is on the lines of

A disneyland, created at a suburban reclamation ground, has become another popular location for filmmakers. They get ready-made sets of pleasure spots as well as joy rides and the stars literally go on a merry-go-round doing romantic, funny or children-oriented scenes. B. Subhash's Love, Love with the pop pair Aamir and Juhi has completed its last schedule at Film City as well as the Mayura Hotel and the famous Bhalla's bungalow, which is hired out non-stop for shoot-

Garajna with Sri Devi, Vinod Khanna and Rishi Kapoor was shot by director K.R. Reddy at various spots. It is the story of a mother (Nutan) whose two sons fall in love with the same girl. Mahesh Bhatt's Jurn rumoured to be a Hindi version of Fatal Attraction, was shot at scenic locales like Madh Island and the forests around Film City.

Vinod Khanna, Meenakshi and Sangeeta enact the love triangle. It eems Mahesh is now turning attention away from his personal life episodes to the tug-of-war between wife, husband and mistress. Race Heroines are in a hectic race to play snakes, who can turn into bewitching females and they are also competing to do sizzling snake dances. The two top ones making a bid for big success are Rekha and Sri Devi. Rekha took up Sheshnaag mainly hoping to be one up on "Nagina" and the famous song-dance Main naagin tu saapera performed by Sri Devi at the climax. A huge & expensive set was put up at Mehboob Studios to picturise a 9-minute snake dance on Rekha. It became even more famous after Rekha's bitter fight with dance director Saroj Khan, which prolonged the schedule from 9 to 14 days.

Not to be outdone, Sri Devi acted and danced continuously for Harmesh Malhotra's Nigahen (or "Nagina-Part 2") at R.K. and Seth studios, so that the film is nearly complete. Saroj is directing Sri Devi's dances too and Rekha's grouse was that the choreographer was doing a much better job for her rival.

Anyway Rekha, soon realised that she should not fall back in the race for the top, so she quickly ate humble pie and completed the dance. In that case, she should have also quarrelled with Laxmikant-Pyarelal, who are composing the music for both Sheshnaag as well as Nigahen.

Khan's rule OK?

Mazhar Khan has bee unable to gain any mileage from his popular comic-villainish role in the TV serial Buniyaad, he has decided to start directing his own film. He didn't have to look for a producer. Now Gang is a Zeenat Aman Khan meaning Mazhar Khan and not Sanjay Khan presentation. The banner is also in the family, since it is named after their two kids, Azhar-Azaan Film Company. They have roped in Jackie and Avesha to help in the production. Two more Khans in the film are actor Amjad Khan and cameraman

Farha: walked out of an Nadeem Khan.

Raw deal

The late filmmaker Sohanlal Kanwar who was ailing for a long time with liver cancer was given a raw deal by Sudha Chandran. Kanwar had given her a stellar role in his last film. Tadap Aisi Bhi Hoti Hai. But the greedy actress went on demanding more fees. The helpless Kanwar had to cut down her role. The film will be now released after his death. Pity that a one-legged actress could not realise the suffering of a sick producer.

Farha furore

Farha again created a furore by walking out of an Amitabh film, Khuda Gawah, after some silly fights with director Mukul Anand. It was indirectly an insult to Amitabh. Later, when she saw the hidden "iron fist", she tried to change her version and made her secretary as well as the film's producer to declare that there was no misbehaving. She said that actually it was a very peaceful parting and goodbye. Peaceful with Farha? Bah.

Shilpe's gain

Farha's loss is Shilpa's gain. She at once grabbed the role in the big film with Amitabh and Sri Devi. Shilpa will play the young heroine of Sunjay Dutt. Incidentally, this discovery of Sawan Kumar, the "Souten" expert, has been making waves by bagging many roles after her freedom from Sawan's contract. She even did a cabaret for Hisaab Chukta, where Kimi is the heroine. This is a sure passport to more films and stardom.

Other woman Sawan Kumar has been going one better every time with his "Souten" series. This time it is Souten Ki Souten, which is not a bad title, since a mistress must have a dose of her own medicine. But Sawan may not have the guts for such a bold story. By the way where does he get all these ideas about the other women? People say: Just look at his own harem after parting from wife Usha Khanna.

Ravi's gamble

Since multi-starrers anyway the starry director Ravi Tandon has started Zanjeeren with TV stars like Pallavi Joshi, Nitish Bhardwaj, Salim Ghouse, Vikram Gokhale, etc. Let's see if this gamble pays off.

QUESTION: I suffer from very painful corns and calluses on my feet. What kind of treatment would be best for me?

ANSWER: Corns and calluses, as well as warts, are collectively referred to as hyperkeratoses. A hardened area of skin is a callus. while a corn contains a hard, whitish core. Warts are usually viral in origin; while a specific wart may be removed, the virus itself remains in the system.

Corns and calluses result when a foot is squeezed into a tight shoe, or an internal bone rubs against the fleshy part of the foot. Calluses develop from repeated trauma to an area. A corn develops to protect the foot against injury to its internal parts; any treatment must take this underlying condition into account.

Projections on the bones within the foot — called condyles — are often to blame for corns. The condyle may have become thicker than normal due to injury or arthiritis, and may need to be surgically shaved off, a procedure which can often be performed with a minimal incision in the skin. Abnormal bone movement may be at fault. Instead of surgery, orthotics - special molded devices — are inserted into the patient's shoes to redirect the movement of foot bones. This results in improved distribution of body weight while walking or running, and less sensitivity in the corns and Calluses can be "pared" - cut away by a podiatrist, or treated with solutions to reduce their thickness. Pads that direct the body weight away from the corn; or protect it from friction also provide effective relief. Your doctor can help you select footwear that will lessen pressure on sensitive areas. In any event, the first step in getting back on your feet is a visit to the appropriate specialist, either a dermatologists or podiatrist, depending upon the nature of QUESTION: I can rarely get into a good conversation without someone telling me how far he jogged today or how many push-ups he performed. If I believed every line I've heard I would have to believe that everyone in the world is exercising except me. The truth now, is everyone really on this exercise

ANSWER: While the majority of Americans think they're in shape, only a minority actually exercise. In one study by the National Center for Health Statistics, 80 per cent of the respondents considered themselves to be as active or more active than other people their age — yet only 58 per cent exercised. And according to research at the University of Michigan, one-third of us never exercise at all, and only 10 per cent of us do enough exercise to even think about warding off heart disease. Worse, most peo-ple don't know how hard, how long or how often they need to work out in order to benefit the heart and lungs. 1980 TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES, INC.

India play first time for 20 years without an Amritraj

NEW DELHI, April 7. (Reuter): India will play a Davis Cup tennis tie next month without one of the Amritraj brothers — Vijay, Anand or Ashok — for the first time for nearly 20 years.

Part-time film actor Vijay, 36, had been named captain for the May 5-7 Asia-Ocean group second-round clash against South Korea or Japan, but pulled out due to heel and shoulder injuries.

Anand, 38, who alongside Vijay helped India to Davis Cup finals in 1974 and 1978, was dropped from the squad earlier this year because he was no longer among the country's top five and youngest brother Ashok, a top five player in the 1970s, also failed to be selected.

Meanwhile, in Dhaka, Bangladesh led Singapore 2-0 after the first day of their Davis Cup Asia-Oceania Zone Group Two quarterfinal tennis tie yesterday. Results (Bangladeshi names first): Shovan Jamaly beat Sunny Liu 6-7 4-6 7-5 6-3 6-2: Faisal Rahman beat Liu Wai Yan 3-66-4 1-0 -- retired. Algeria and Morocco were drawing 1-1 after the second day of their Davis Cup African Zone Group Two quarterfinal yester-The doubles was suspended

Maccabi Tel Aviv beaten in European basketball championship

Kukoc's magic helps Yugoslavia score upset win

MUNICH. West Germany, April 7, (AP): The magic was in the movement for Toni Kukoc and it resulted in a fairytale end-ing for him and his young Yugoslav teammates at European basketball's final four.

Tense and unsure of himself in the first half, Kukoc, the 20-year-old forward often called the "Magic Johnson of Europe," adjusted his steps after intermission and led Jugoplastika to a 75-69 upset of top-seeded Maccabi Tel Aviv in the Continental Club Championship last night.
"Unbelievable. I just can't believe it," Kukoc exclaimed after scoring 13 of his 18 points in the second half, as Jugoplastika, seeded fourth, rallied from a six-point deficit with 9:12 left to play to hand Maccabi its third consecutive championship-game

After dominating the semifinal victory over secondseeded Barcelona on Tuesday night. Kukoc was a different player in the first 20 minutes against Maccabi.

He looked lost on court, pass-ing up open shots and clanging the ones he did take. On one free throw, he sent up an airball that fell in front of the basket. With only one 3-point field goal from its star in the first 18 1-2 minutes, Jugoplastika wasted a six-point lead and had to fight back for a 35-35 halftime tie.

When the second half opened, however, the old Kukoc was back. He hit a layup to put his team in front 37-35 and showed renewed confidence, stepping back across the 3-point line for a basket that put the Yugoslavs up

Maccabi went on a 12-3 run. the only Jugoplastika points coming on a Kukoc 3-pointer, but the 2.08-metre forward then added five more points as Jugo-plastika took a 62-61 lead moving ahead on another 3-pointer from its star.

"I didn't give him any special instructions at halftime," Jugo-plastika coach Bozidar Malj-kovic said. "I told him to improve his movement. No criticism. Just improve your movement.

With Kukoc back on target and a stiffling defence forcing four consecutive Maccabi turnovers. Jugoplastika moved to a 71-66 lead and sealed the victory with a pair of baskets by centre Dino Radja — an airball turned into a layup and a slam dunk at the end of a fast break.

The loss was a bitter one for Maccabi, which appeared several times to take the upper hand with its speed and muscle.

"We are very fed up with losing three times in a row in the final," Maccabi captain Doron Jamchi said. "I know we all wan-ted very much to win. We tried."

Jamchi was the game's high scorer with 25 points. Kevin Magee, the former all-American who scored 29 points in a semifinal victory over Aris Thessalonika, was limited to 10 points against Jugoplastika, including just three in the second half. His only point in the final 17 minutes was a free throw that tied it 64-64 with five minutes remaining.

points the most Atlanta has scored this season in oue half. The 42-point margin of victory tied the all-time record for the Hawks, who beat San Diego 129-

87 on Nov 30, 1967. Moses Malone had 25 points and 12 reounds for the Hawks, while Dominique Wilkins and John Battle each added 19. Philadelphia was led by Charles Barkley and Ron Anderson, who both had 18 points.

In the only other game in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night, the Phoenix Suns beat the Utah Jazz 114-104.

Kevin Johnson scored 13 of his 32 points in the fourth period and Tom Chambers had 11 of his 30 in the final seven minutes for the

The victory put Phoenix 3 1-2 games behind the first-place Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA's Pacific Division. Utah lost in Phoenix for the seventh straight time despite 29 points from Karl Malone and 28 from Thurl Bailey.

Phoenix, 33-5 at home this season including a 26-0 mark against Western Conference foes, trailed 74-73 after a 10-1 Utah run with 3:53 left in the third gwarter.

Navratilova meets Mandlikova in quarterfinals

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, SC, April 7. (Reuter): Defending champion Martina Navratilova and two Soviet players, Natalia Zvereva and Leila Meskhi, advanced yesterday to the quarterfinals of a $300,000 women's tennis tournament.

Eight-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Australia avenged a loss in the 1988 French Open when she outplayed 11th-seeded Bettina Fulco of Argentina 6-1 6-2.

SAN DIEGO, April 7, (Reuter): John McEnroe is the strong favourite against Yannick Noah in the first world group Davis Cup match today between the United States and France.

McEnroe, with 37 victories, has won more singles Davis Cup matches than any other US player, and in combined singles and doubles play, the New Yorker has a 52-9 record the best of any American.

Skoff is also counting on the poor performance of the Swedes much as he did when playing 5. 7-5. 6-3.

Striker Alan Smith and midfielder Paul Davis have been struck down by injuries that could wreck the Gunners' chances of bringing the title to London for the first time in 18 years.

Earlier this week, Smith, the First Division's top league scorer with 19 goals, had his cheekbone smashed in two places in a freak accident during a routine train-ing exercise. He will miss at least three of Arsenal's remaining nine fixtures.

The two teams clash at Liverpool on Arpil 23 in what could be a championship decider. But without Smith and Davis, both of whom have played for England, Arsenal's task of achieving its first championship since 1971 may prove too great.

"It's come at a crucial time and it's a bad blow considering what has happened to Alan Smith," said Davis, who has only been back in the Arsenal side for three weeks. "We are still confident we will get the title but these are two setbacks we could have done without.

Trevino takes lead in first round of Masters Open

AUGUSTA, Georgia, April 7, (AP): Lee Trevino forgot where he was. Maybe that's why he shot his best round in 18 years at the Masters.

Playing what could be his last Masters, Trevino battled gusty winds for a 5-under-par 67 yesterday in the opening round of the 53rd Masters, and led former British champion Nick Faldo of England by a single stroke.

Trevino complained that, at 49, his memory isn't what it once

"I forget my glasses. I forget my car keys. I can be driving home and go to the wrong address; I forgot I moved, 'said Trevino.

Perhaps his mind wandered and he forgot he was playing the course that has been his nemesis for two decades: the Augusta National Golf Club, where he vowed never to play again."

Three times in the 1970s. Trevino declined an invitation to this elite event. As late as last year, he said "I hope to God they

"I'm consistent; nothing has changed," Trevino responded when asked if the best round he ever shot at the Masters had altered his attitude about the course or the tournament.

The hogey-free effort came as a complete surprise, Trevino said.

"I certainly didn't expect to play this well." said Trevino, who hasn't played a full schedule in seven seasons and became the oldest man ever to lead this tour-
